Evidently Dead for Several Months; Artilleryman Discovers Body.

Son of Former Policeman Steps in Front of Mass. Truck; Crushed.

Mystery surrounds the finding of an unidentified body of a man, believed to be an American, early Sunday morning on the mesa several miles east of El Paso, by Corp. J. J. Divine, of the 1st Massachusetts field artillery. The finding of the body was reported to coroner James J. Murphy by corporal Divine, and an investigation which is expected to develop the identification of the body, is being conducted. It had apparently been there for at least two months, in the opinion of coroner Murphy, the body being in a badly decomposed condition, while one hand had been partly eaten away by small insects. No papers were found on the body, although the clothes appeared to be in good condition. The man wore a blue shirt, a pair of brown buttoned shoes and a pair of trousers. The color was impossible to ascertain. The teeth were large and prominent, while the hair was of a dark brown. The body was of a medium height and clean shaven. The body was removed to the J. J. Koster undertaking parlors on Campbell street.

negotiations in his address and his plan for legislation.

Brotherhood Men Go Home.

The 440 brotherhood representatives who have been here during the negotiations were today on their way home, with the exception of a handful of leaders left behind in Washington with instructions how to proceed in case a strike is called. An official call for a strike, subject to release by the remaining representatives. This call orders all employees to remain off company property.

So far as can be learned, the brotherhoods, in the event of a strike, intend to continue running trains to the Mexican border and to also provide crews for mail and possibly milk trains.

RAILROADS ARE PREPARING FOR STRIKE; MEN ARE SCARCE

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 28.—Preparations to meet a railway strike on short notice have been made by railways operating out of Chicago while awaiting results of conferences between president Wilson and labor and railway leaders. Conferences attended by the operating heads have been of an informal nature.

Milk and express trains, a combination of mail coaches, baggage cars for milk and other perishable foodstuffs will be given precedence. It was learned, over passenger trains in event of a strike.

Railway officials here said that skilled strike breakers are hard to find.

RECRUITS FOR NEW JERSEY REGIMENTS GO TO DOUGLAS

One hundred and fourteen recruits for the First, Fourth and Fifth New Jersey infantries at Douglas, Ariz., stopped over an hour and 45 minutes at the union depot Sunday evening, waiting for Douglas to start on the "Jersey special." They were under the charge of Capt. H. J. Burlington, first New Jersey infantry, who in civil life is an elevator manufacturer in New York city.

The recruits were from Ft. Du Pont, Delaware City, N. J., and were here to serve one month, drilling at Ft. Du Pont. They enlisted at Newark, Paterson, Jersey City, Passaic and Orange, N. J. The first regiment band played at every stop and at Ft. Worth the men paraded up the streets.

Exiled State Executive of Chihuahua and Jalisco Succumbs to Bloodclot.

Col. Miguel Ahumada, governor of the states of Chihuahua and Jalisco during the presidency of Porfirio Diaz, and for more than 20 years one of the most influential military and civil officials of northern Mexico, died suddenly at his home, 1911 East Rio Grande street, in El Paso early Sunday morning, at the age of 71 years. The immediate cause of his death was a blood clot on the brain.

Col. Ahumada was known throughout Mexico as one of the most progressive state officials of the republic. His constructive work in Chihuahua and Jalisco is evident in the many fine public institutions established in those states during his government of them. Education for the poorer classes was one of Ahumada's great works and in the annual budgets of his administration he set aside for the largest amounts of money. Although for many years a military leader, called on to keep the peace on the border, he was essentially a strict disciplinarian. Col. Ahumada was a most approachable and democratic man and was held in high esteem by thousands of Americans. In fact, it was a saying for years that Miguel Ahumada was the best friend to Americans in the entire republic, and a regret to them he had not been elected president.

Born in Colima in 1845.

Col. Ahumada was born in Colima, capital of the Pacific coast state by that name, in 1845 and received his education there. During the French intervention in the 60's, he fought as a lieutenant in the local troops obedient to Benito Juarez against the empire of Maximilian. Shortly after being promoted to a captain, following the campaign against the French, he was in charge of a campaign against the Yaqui Indians in Sonora. Later he was made commander of the gendarmes fiscal, the old order rough riders of Sonora, and in 1884 was transferred to Chihuahua. In 1892 he was elected governor of Chihuahua and, after serving 10 years, was elected governor of Jalisco, taking his seat in Guadalajara, May 1, 1902. At the beginning of 1911 he was relieved by Manuel Cueto Gallardo and returned to Chihuahua to succeed Alberto Terán. He was the state governor to Abram Gonzalez, Madero governor elect, in the summer of that year.

Stopped bandits in Chihuahua.

It has been said by Ahumada that he was called to Mexico City, while in command of the fiscal guards in Chihuahua, and asked by president Diaz to be in charge of that body and other lawlessness in that state would be stopped if he were made governor. Knapplingly replying in the affirmative, Col. Ahumada was told to return to his command and await the coming election, which resulted in his being chosen to govern the state. He will be re-elected commercial and mining interests, giving military protection to all cantons and riding the big state of bandits in a short period, are matters of record at that capital. Col. Ahumada was one of the few governors of Chihuahua and Jalisco who were not dominated by the rich men of those states. Physically he was a giant among his people, being more than six feet in height.

Leaves Second Wife and Children.

Col. Ahumada's first wife was Adela Salazar, of Magdalena, Sonora. A son, Miguel, Jr., and a daughter, Conchita, were born of this union. Miss Ahumada married J. Sanchez Ortega, in Guadalajara, and resides there. Col. Ahumada, Jr., was with his father at his death. Mrs. Ahumada died several years ago and is buried in Chihuahua. Col. Ahumada later married Miss Juarez, of El Paso, and they have many friends in El Paso.

Came to El Paso An Exile.

Col. Ahumada came here to make his residence after the overthrow of the Huerta administration in Mexico. He was obliged to leave his ranches in the southern part of Jalisco and his city home in Guadalajara in the hands of servants and suffered heavy losses by confiscation by Carrancistas. However, he is understood to have considerable wealth which he had accumulated in former years. He was once the owner of the Ahumada hotel in Chihuahua and interested in mining companies of the state.

At the beginning of construction of the Rio Grande, Sierra Madre & Pacific railroad, now the Mexican National Western, at Juarez, in 1897, Gov. Ahumada drove the first spike, a golden one. The Mexican Central station of Ahumada, close to the Carrizal bath, is named for the dead governor.

Great Friend of El Pasos.

As a help to the El Paso Elks, of which Col. Ahumada was a local friend, he twice sent the famous Gendarmes club of Jalisco to national Elks' conventions at Buffalo and Philadelphia. It was at Atlantic City, on the last of the band, that director Azallia, of the band, was drowned, his body being returned to Guadalajara and given a military funeral. The Chihuahua Elks' organization of the Ahumada administration were frequently heard in El Paso and the governor himself was a welcome and frequent guest at local business men and political leaders.

Gov. Ahumada sent his bands here every year to El Paso's "Sunshine in January" carnival and was general in a visit to El Paso at that time and during other celebrations. He dedicated the present Juarez jail in July, 1902, and had as his guests Mayor R. E. Hannum and many other El Pasos.

Gov. Ahumada was elected an honorary member of the Quen Sab Club of El Paso lodge of Elks, in 1906, and a handsome floral wreath from this organization was sent by the Quen Sab club Sunday to his home. The members of the club attended his funeral Monday morning, attired in their white uniforms. The deceased governor was not a member of the Elks, as nobody but an American citizen can belong to that organization, but he was an honorary member of the Quen Sab club, which is a club composed of the Elks.

Was 33rd Degree Mason.

Col. Ahumada was a prominent 33rd degree Mason in Mexico having presided over the old grand lodge of Chihuahua as grand master and being a 33rd degree member of the supreme council of Mexico, Ancient & Accepted Scottish Rite. He was a member of the lodge of Americans at Guadalajara known as "Jalisco No. 3" and did much to foster the society in that city. He was an honorary member of Hells temple, Mystic Shrine, at Dallas, Texas.

Body Placed in Receiving Vault.

Monday morning his body was removed from his residence to the church of the Immaculate Conception for funeral services, after which it was taken to the receiving vault in Cuernavaca, where it was placed to rest beside the bodies of Huerta and Orozco. At some future date the body probably will be sent to Guadalajara for interment. Hundreds of friends of the dead governor viewed his face at the church.

OPHELIA

Reconstruction, of course! When the great war is over, shattered Europe must be rebuilt. Mediaeval architecture, crumbled by cannon, will be replaced by well-lighted, well-ventilated, convenient and sanitary buildings of the present day. In this tremendous rebuilding, will play a leading role; for CERTAIN-TEED is the twentieth century answer to the demand for roofing that is economical to buy, easy to lay and inexpensive to maintain. CERTAIN-TEED Roofing is made in rolls; also in slate-surfaced shingles. There is a type of CERTAIN-TEED for every kind of building, with flat or pitched roof, from the largest skyscraper down to the smallest residence or out-building. It makes a clean, attractive roof, with a very low cost per year of life. It is guaranteed for 5, 10 or 15 years, according to type (1, 2 or 3). Experience proves that it outlasts the period of guarantee.

Certain-teed Roofing

The long life of CERTAIN-TEED is due to the quality of the roofing felt and the character of the asphalt saturation. This is a blend of soft asphalts prepared by the General's board of expert chemists. The highest quality roofing felt is thoroughly saturated with this soft blend, and is then coated with a blend of harder asphalts, which prevents the drying-out process so destructive to ordinary roofing.

If you are interested in roofs, investigate CERTAIN-TEED before you decide upon the type to buy. You will find CERTAIN-TEED for sale by responsible dealers all over the world.

LEGALISTA SHOT BY FIRING SQUAD

Confesses to Gen. Gonzales and Is Executed Monday in Juarez.

Nonchalantly smoking a cigar, and refusing to have the traditional bandage played over his eyes, Jose Victor Castillo, aged 25, for two years a resident of El Paso, was executed by order of Gen. Francisco Gonzales in the graveyard of Juarez Monday morning.

Castillo was one of the rebels under "Gen." Manuel Ochoa, a former Villista chief, who crossed the river at Fabens last week in the effort to start a revolution against the Carrancista government. Ochoa's band encountered a small force of Mexican customs officers, who captured four of the rebels. Three of them, including Gen. Ochoa, broke away from their captors, and made their escape. Castillo, the remaining prisoner, was brought to Juarez Sunday night and sentenced to death.

The doomed man was led to the "campo santo," or graveyard, on the outskirts of Juarez, at 11 o'clock Monday morning in the custody of a firing squad of five Carrancista soldiers, commanded by Capt. Luis Medrano and Corp. Alexis Pasten.

Letter to Sister.

Castillo refused to make any statement before dying, but left a letter to a sister. When one of the officers offered to bandage his eyes, he waved aside the handkerchief contemptuously, and continued puffing away at his cigar.

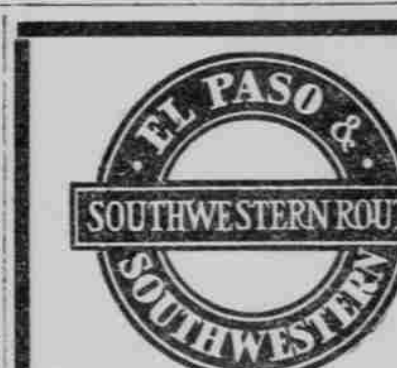

"Preparen," came the order of the company officer to his squad. The men held their guns in readiness.

"Apuntan." The five guns were pointed at the breast of young Castillo, who still smoked away at his cigar.

"Fuego." The body of the Legalista martyr fell forward, and after a momentary quiver, lay still. As a matter of form, the officer in charge fired the "golpe de gracia" into the temple of the prostrate man.

Castillo confessed to me this morning that he and Ochoa were aided and abetted by the leaders of the Legalista movement," said Gen. Gonzales after the execution. "A number of papers were found in the saddle bag of one of Ochoa's men that further incriminated the former general and his followers."

"The death of Castillo was decreed by the state and Imperial governments, according to the law of January
